ABOUT ME

I'm originally from the north of Sweden, but have spent most of my working career in Italy. The climate and food is undeniably better, but I do miss the snow and stars during cold winter nights.

In my spare time I read a lot of books and I play a lot of games, both of which I wish I could do more of.

I like to think that the books I read help me to make sense of the world around us, often diving into broad topics centered around history, humankind and economics. Games on the other hand helps me to escape that same world and see it from another perspective.

I'm always eager to learn new skills and broaden my capabilities as technology moves ever-forward.
